

The Children's Play Area initiative, a collaborative effort involving the Institute of Child Health and Hospital for Children (ICH), Egmore, Energy Projekt, and YRGCARE Hospital, has transformed the ground floor of Block E at ICH into a delightful recreational center. This initiative aims to enhance the well-being of children receiving outpatient and inpatient care, providing them with a secure space for playing, reading, friendship building, dancing, and artistic expression.

RATIONALE:

Pediatric patients grappling with terminal illnesses frequently endure extended hospital stays, frequent treatments, and the emotional toll of their conditions. Moreover, they experience diminished connections with family and reduced social interactions with other children due to fewer neighborhood playmates or friends from school.

PROVIDING A DEDICATED PLAY AREA CAN SERVE THE FOLLOWING PURPOSES:

EMOTIONAL WELL-BEING:

The play area provides a safe and joyful space for children to engage in activities that promote emotional well-being, relaxation, and fun.

DISTRACTION AND PAIN MANAGEMENT:

Play is an effective distraction therapy that can help reduce pain perception and anxiety in children undergoing treatments or procedures.

FAMILY SUPPORT:

The play area will also serve as a place where families can spend quality time with their children in a positive environment, fostering stronger bonds and reducing stress.

The project focuses on a safe and joyful space for children to engage in activities that promote emotional well-being, relaxation, fun, physical activity, social interaction, and cognitive development.

VARIETY OF PLAY EQUIPMENT:

The play area includes a diverse array of play structures, such as swings and slides; indoor games, such as board games and puzzles; a study table; storybooks; and a cloth stand. This comprehensive variety guarantees engagement and stimulation for all children, catering to their individual interests and preferences, and artistic expression.

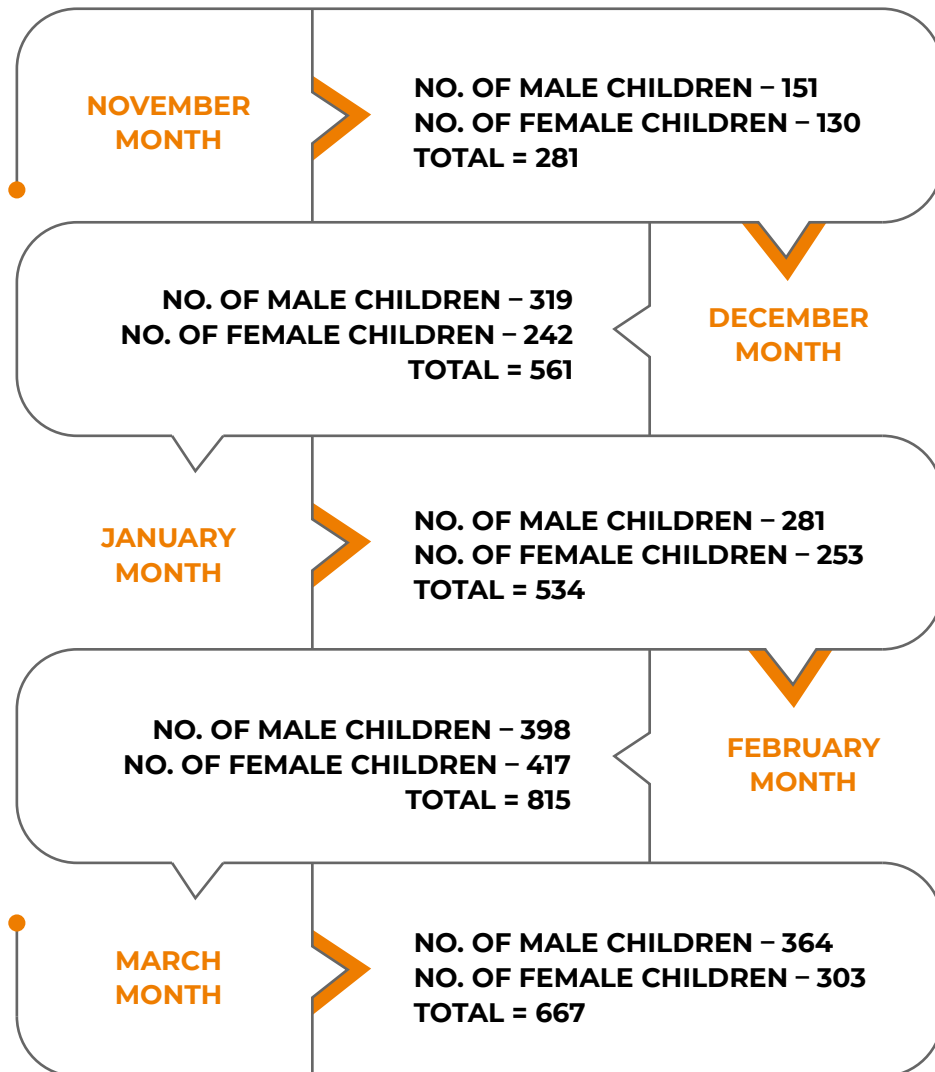

CONCLUSION:

To conclude, the children’s play area has been thoughtfully structured, prioritizing safety, cleanliness, inclusiveness, diversity, and eco-friendliness. We expect this space to not only function as a recreational spot for children but also enhance the community’s overall well-being and development.
